Kootenay National Park of Canada

Kootenay National Park of Canada

DAY 3

Visit Natural Bridge, an impressive work of nature formed by the powerful Kicking Horse River. Be amazed at the influence of rushing water as it carves ancient rocks. Rent a canoe and explore Emerald Lake's bright, jewel-coloured waters up close! Make sure to see Takakkaw Falls, one of the highest waterfalls in Canada! Listen to the rushing water resonate within the air, and feel the fresh spray of mist on your skin.

 Camping,
Kicking Horse Campground

DAY 4

Book ahead and be one of the lucky few who get to discover the amazing Burgess Shale fossils sites and learn about ecosystems that once thrived there. Choose a guided hike at Walcott Quarry or Mount Stephen. Observe high mountain peaks, glacier-fed lakes and fossils over 500 million years old! This UNESCO World Heritage Site is continuously looking for new animals. Can you identify a new fossil?

 Camping,
Kicking Horse Campground

DAY 5

KOOTENAY 60 km from Kicking Horse Campground

Prior to entering Kootenay National Park, download the Kootenay Guided Tour App. Buckle your seatbelts, and get ready for a GPS-triggered, behind-the-scenes audio driving tour of one of BC's most scenic highways. Listen to your virtual guide and check out the Continental Divide, the breathtaking Kootenay Valley Viewpoint and Sinclair Canyon.

 oTENTik,
Redstreak Campground

DAY 6

Take a day for rejuvenation and soak in the mineral-rich Radium Hot Springs. Relax in the hot pools and take in the beauty of Sinclair Canyon. Enjoy the easy hiking trails in the Redstreak Restoration Area and feel completely at peace. Admire the lush green grass supporting the remarkable Columbia Valley— maybe you'll even spot some Bighorn Sheep!

 oTENTik,
Redstreak Campground

DAY 7

Head to the intriguing Paint Pots and see this vibrant orange mineral spring-system! Admire the ochre-coloured clay that Indigenous peoples have been gathering from this special place for thousands of years. Next, hike to Marble Canyon and marvel at the glacier blue waters rushing through a striking limestone gorge. A truly picturesque must-see in Kootenay!

Return to Calgary, 260 km

3-DAY GETAWAY

HEART OF THE FUR TRADE

 FROM EDMONTON TO ROCKY MOUNTAIN HOUSE

 ROUNDTRIP
545 km

 LOCATIONS
Rocky Mountain House National Historic Site
Elk Island National Park

Elk Island National Park

DAY 1

ROCKY MOUNTAIN HOUSE

230 km from Edmonton

Immerse yourself in the lifestyle of the fur trade. Stop by the visitor centre for a 3D virtual reality experience, and journey back to when the site was a bustling trade post for the North West Company and the Hudson Bay Company. Try your hand at finger weaving, Métis jigging and other Indigenous arts and crafts.

Grab your Fur Trade Camp Kit and sleep on the banks of the North Saskatchewan River.

 Métis trapper's tent,
Heritage Camping

ELK ISLAND

Fort Saskatchewan, 270 km from Rocky Mountain House

Enjoy the waters of Astotin Lake and rent a canoe, kayak or even try a stand up paddle board! Bask in the sun as you enjoy a picnic on the beach. End your day by admiring the sunset, and spend the night counting the stars from the comfort of your campground. Keep an eye out for seasonal meteor showers and the northern lights!

 Camping,
Astotin Lake Campground

DAY 3

Hit the Beaver Pond Trail in the morning and perhaps even catch a glimpse of bison. Did you know that the fur trade had completely eliminated beavers from this region by the mid-1800s? But thanks to their reintroduction in the 1940s, you're sure to spot plenty of beaver activity along the trail if you keep your eyes open!

CONSERVING

FOR THE FUTURE

THE CHALLENGE

What can we do to address climate change and fight global warming?

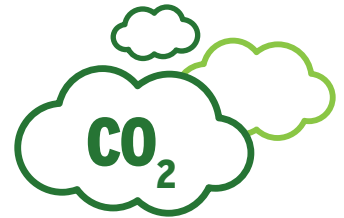

Carbon dioxide is a major greenhouse gas and driver of climate change, however salt marsh ecosystems can store large amounts of carbon, often for longer than many mature forests.

A STEP IN THE RIGHT DIRECTION

In an international effort, Parks Canada Coastal Ecologists are studying the effect that eelgrass meadow and tidal salt marshes have on the intake and storage of greenhouse gases such as carbon dioxide.

THE RESULT?

Protecting these ecosystems helps them store carbon, keeping it out of the atmosphere. It's part of a "natural solution" to climate change.

MORNING STROLL

One of my favourite things to do at Rocky Mountain House is wake up in a Métis Trapper Tent, then go for a stroll amongst the Trembling Aspens. If you're lucky, in the early morning light the mist rises off the North Saskatchewan River, and you can imagine the hearty souls from years past paddling upstream as part of the once thriving fur trade.

SLICE OF THE FORT

I love talking with visitors and hearing their different perspectives on Canada's history. We find so many points of connection with the story of this place, and unique ways of looking at things. Quite literally – there is a spot in one of our bastion towers where you can look out and see this long, panoramic slice of Fort Langley – I love that!

VIEW FROM THE VISITOR CENTRE

Looking out the windows of the Bar U Ranch National Historic Site Visitor Centre towards the majestic Rocky Mountains over the slowly rolling porcupine hills was a moment I soaked in and forever revisit in my mind. I felt so at home, at peace and inspired.

RASPBERRY COVE

I love Raspberry Cove in Houston Stewart Inlet at Gwaii Haanas. The beach is really nice and a bit rocky, and when I visited a few years back it was very serene. While we were there, I saw an octopus in the intertidal zone. At first I didn't notice but then I saw his eye. It was thrilling and creepy all at once!

WHIRLPOOL TRAIL-CROSS-COUNTRY SKIING

The Whirlpool Trail in Jasper National Park is a great cross-country ski trail for all ability levels. I love going for a short ski to the Whirlpool River that overlooks beautiful Mount Kerkeslin, and taking a break along the shoreline to watch the American dippers as they fly in and out of the open water all winter long. I never forget to bring a picnic and enjoy the river view!

WINTER AT ELK ISLAND

While each season provides unique experiences, winter is one of my favourite times to explore Elk Island National Park. Whether watching for wildlife while skating around the islands of Astotin Lake; snowshoeing over snow-drifts; or sharing stories around a crackling campfire, a winter visit is always rewarding.
