I was born and raised in Norris Point, a small community in the middle of Gros Morne National Park. I've lived in a National Park for most of my life, and have spent my entire career working for Parks Canada. I have been very lucky to have worked in places like Banff in Alberta and the Niagara National Historic Sites in Niagara on the Lake, Ontario. After an absence of more than five years, I am pleased to have had the opportunity to come home, and to welcome you all here as Superintendent.

This is an amazing place, with stunning scenery and a history that goes back thousands of years. I've spent a lot of time over the years hiking, skiing and camping in many areas of the Park. I remember many great hikes to the top of Gros Morne Mountain, spending time exploring the orange rocks of the Tablelands, and walking along the coast at Green Gardens, near Trout River. Growing up in Norris Point we always had an incredible view of the Tablelands and Bonne Bay. It was usually through the eyes of visiting family that I regained an appreciation for this unique place in which I lived—not only its landscape, but the culture which I often took for granted. I encourage you to take time to explore, to talk with local people and take in many of the excellent activities in the area. Musical evenings, festivals and theatre productions are presented by amazingly talented people throughout the year, and are especially numerous in the summer. Many visitors to this area initially come here for the incredible scenery, but leave with memories enhanced by their encounters with local people and communities.

As a previous manager of three Parks Canada National Historic Sites in western Newfoundland and Labrador; Port au Choix, L'Anse aux Meadows and Red Bay, the history of this area is close to my heart. It is therefore very satisfying to me that in 2013, Red Bay Basque Whaling Station was inscribed as Canada's 17th UNESCO World Heritage Site, one of three UNESCO sites in this region (Gros Morne and L'Anse aux Meadows are the other two). In addition to the sites operated by Parks Canada Agency, there are many more historic sites, houses and museums managed by communities and associations throughout western Newfoundland and Labrador.

On behalf of our passionate Parks Canada staff who you will meet along the way, I would like to welcome you to the area. We look forward to helping in any way we can as you create your own memories and adventures in this very special place.

Geoffrey Hancock,

Superintendent, Parks Canada, Western Newfoundland and Labrador

A World Heritage Site

The spectacular landscape of Gros Morne tells the story of the Earth's transformation. The rocks and geologic features exposed within this place are the result of continents colliding. They have helped define the theory of plate tectonics and rank this place among our planet's most significant natural areas.

The rocks of Gros Morne National Park and the adjacent parts of western Newfoundland provide some of the world's best illustrations of plate tectonics. For this reason, the United Nations Education, Scientific, and Cultural organization (UNESCO) designated the park a World Heritage Site in 1987.

Geologists are able to show the rocks in Gros Morne were part of an ancient ocean. Later these were thrust up to become part of the Appalachian Mountains as two continents collided. Thus, these rocks give support for the theory of plate tectonics. More recently in geological terms, glaciers carved this place into the spectacular landscape we see today.

Gros Morne National Park qualifies as a World Heritage Site for its:

- · "exceptional natural beauty", and
- "outstanding examples representing major stages of Earth's history".

"With your two feet you'll be spanning over 500 million years of Earth history and I think that's pretty incredible"

Penny Morrill, Dept of Earth Science, Memorial University

KAYAKING

Gros Morne National Park offers many fascinating paddling opportunities with its more than 260 km of coastline. Paddlers should become familiar with the marine and weather conditions before setting out. Wind and weather conditions can change quickly and pose major problems for unsuspecting paddlers. Private operators offer kayaking tours of Bonne Bay.

BOATING

Bonne Bay and Trout River Pond. Boat ramps are located at Trout River Pond, Lomond, and Mill Brook day-use areas. Nearby communities also provide services for boaters, including government wharves, marinas, repair facilities, and boat ramps.

Power boating is allowed on

FISHING

In freshwater: You may fish for trout and salmon in the park. To fish trout, you need a Gros Morne National Park Fishing Permit. To fish on a scheduled salmon river, you need a Gros Morne National Park Salmon Licence and a Provincial Salmon Licence and tag. Park fishing permits and licences are free and available from all park facilities. A valid park pass is also required. Provincial salmon licences are available at retail outlets such as convenience stores and service stations.

Lomond River (including the East Branch), and Deer Arm Brook are scheduled rivers and restricted to fly-fishing. Western Brook and Trout River and its tributaries are closed to fishing. Check with park staff for up-to-date information on seasons, limits, river closures and regulations.

In saltwater: The recreational fishery for groundfish (including cod) is open to both NL residents and non-residents. The limits, season, and specific regulations are announced each year by Fisheries and Oceans Canada (www.dfo-mpo.gc.ca).

SWIMMIN

Open air swimming is best at Shallow Bay, Lomond, and Trout River Pond. None of these sites are supervised, but all have washrooms and picnic tables. Due to the dangerous currents at the mouth of Western Brook, swimming in the ocean off the beach there is not recommended.

Also ask local people for their recommendations — a number of small streams are great for a dip, especially those with pools and waterfalls, for example at Middle Brook near Glenburnie. By mid-summer, even the bay may be pleasant enough for a quick dip!

Gros Morne Swimming Pool, which overlooks Rocky Harbour, has a 25-metre indoor pool with a shallow bay, a leisure harbour, a whirlpool, and a variety of scheduled, supervised activities. The pool is open daily from late June to Labour Day.

There's more than one way to experience this spectacular landscape.

WALK

Your experience begins with a walk into the pond on easy-moderate 3 km trail of gravel and boardwarlk. Along the way, benches provide places to rest and interpretation signs enrich your experience. Plan approximately 45 minutes.

RELAX AT DOCKSIDE

Sit and relax inside the building or outside on the deck. Purchase a light lunch while viewing the magnificent mountains and then share your photos with family and friends by connecting with free wifi.

SCENIC BOAT TOUR

Mattie Mitchell, a famous Mi'kmag guide who lived in Norris Point and walked all over western Newfoundland, was quoted as saying: "When I walk, my legs do the thinking." Hiking is one of the best ways to experience our natural world.

TRAIL GUIDES

The park trails listed on p. 14 are all clearly marked, and feature boardwalks, stairs and bridges where necessary. A map at the beginning of each trail shows the route and any major decision points. A waterproof map/guide to the trails is available for $19.95 at the Tuckamore shops in the Visitor Centre and Discovery Centre.

COMMUNITY TRAILS

Some of the best short walks are right in town. Each community has a few trails.

Trout River	Lighthouse Trail	Trail takes you through fields and woods to the signal light and a view of the community, and the outer coast	1.6 km return
	Eastern Point	Leads to a coastal headland with views of Trout River	2.4 km return

Cow Head	Lighthouse Trail	An old path used by early settlers to get to the lighthouse. Winds through coastal tuckamore and grassy meadows to a panoramic headland at the point of the head	2.5 km return

BACKCOUNTRY CAMPING

Overnight hikes let you immerse yourself in nature. Backcountry campsites have only minimal facilities. There are usually wooden tent pads (to reduce trampling of the soil and to keep your tent off the wet ground), a food locker or bear pole (to store food so that it does not attract bears), and pit toilets. Portable stoves must be used since campfires are not permitted.

Backcountry sites are located on Stanleyville, Green Gardens, Wallace Brook, Ferry Gulch, Snug Harbour trails, and at the end of Trout River Pond (accessible by kayak or canoe).

You must register with the park and purchase a backcountry permit to use any of these backcountry campsites. Registration is based on a first come-first served system.

CLIMBING GROS MORNE: S.STONE

There are no specifically designed bike trails in Gros Morne but bikes are permitted on the Old Mail Road and Stuckless Pond trail. The Old Mail Road is suitable for all riders while mountain bikers may wish to check out the Stuckless Pond trail and the 11km of looped ski trails near the Visitor Centre. The cabin access road across the highway from the Visitor Centre is a favourite of local riders. It has great views of Gros Morne and the Long Range Montains, and Eastern Arm Pond.

WILDERNESS HIKING

The Long Range and North Rim traverses are challenging and spectacular routes that the park recommends for experienced backcountry travellers. Map and compass skills are essential since there are no trails or route markers to show the way. Weather in the mountains can also quickly reduce visibility.

Reservations and a backcountry permit are required for these wilderness treks. You must also do a pre-trip planning session including a self-assessment test at least one day in advance of your trip. Topo maps are for sale at the Visitor Centre and Discovery Centre. Contact park staff for more information.

Long Range Traverse 35 km (4 days +) North Rim Traverse 27 km (3 days +)

FRIENDLY REMINDER!

Pets are allowed on most hiking trails but must be kept on a leash. Pets are not allowed on the top of Gros Morne Mountain but are allowed on the section of trail to the base of the mountain.

TABLELANDS DRIVE

Route 431 heads west at Wiltondale, passing through the sheltered forests of the Lomond River valley before twisting down The Struggle into the South Arm of Bonne Bay. This was the only road link to the northern peninsula until 1968. The Tablelands loom above the small communities perched along the side of the fjord: Glenburnie, Birchy Head and Shoal Brook ramble over the glacial deltas that 10,000 years ago flowed into the bay. Woody Point's large historic homes and buildings hint at its

COASTAL DRIVE

Route 430 heads north at Wiltondale and hugs the western coast of the park. There are spectacular views of the Long Range Mountains and Bonne Bay as the road climbs over Southeast Hills and then winds along the East Arm of Bonne Bay.

A side trip to Norris Point rewards you with a panoramic view of Bonne Bay and the Tablelands. At the town's waterfront you can stroll onto the wharf, visit the aquaria of the Bonne Bay Marine Station or take a boat or kayak tour.

North of Rocky Harbour, Lobster Cove Head lighthouse guards the entrance to Bonne Bay and overlooks the Gulf of St. Lawrence. The scenery changes dramatically along this outer coast. The Long Range Mountains retreat to the east as the road follows the windswept coastline. The fish staging areas, dotted along the shore, are a reminder of the inshore fishery's importance to this coast.

A lowland of forest and bog separates the coast from the mountains. Here you'll see roadside gardens where people grow root crops in the rich peaty soil, and short trails lead through the tuckamore to the shore. Near the park's northern boundary, at Cow Head, you can take in a play at the Gros Morne Theatre festival or enjoy the long sandy beaches at Shallow Bay.

past importance as a commercial centre for western Newfoundland.

Before Woody Point, the road turns inland and climbs to the bright yellow Discovery Centre. This is a great place to stop for an overview of all the mysteries of the landscape. As you drive on through Trout River Gulch, you can appreciate the way that mountains affect weather, and sense how climate and geology reign in this bizarre landscape. Here glaciation has laid bare the bones of the Earth, and a rare chapter of Earth's history is exposed – an ocean floor upturned, the deepest layers on top – a wondrous illustration of plate tectonics.

The road ends at Trout River, where you can stroll along the boardwalk by the sea, and discover its marine heritage in the community museum. More views await at Trout River Pond, where you can also explore on foot, by boat or in a kayak.

MOOSE AND THE FOREST FINDING THE BALANCE

Gros Morne is famous for its very large moose population. Moose were introduced to Newfoundland over a century ago and in Gros Morne they found abundant food, few predators, and protection from hunting. But all those moose are taking their toll on the health of the park's forests. Moose are eating so many young trees that they are preventing the forest from regrowing to form the next generation of forest. Action was needed to protect the park's forests.

After extensive consultation,
Parks Canada implemented a pilot moose population reduction in Gros Morne National Park in 2011.
Since that time, approximately 1600 moose have been harvested in
Gros Morne by qualified hunters.

Parks Canada will continue with the harvest from September 13, 2014 to February 2, 2015. The park has been divided into a number of carefully-selected zones to ensure that visitors to the park during this period have access to a wide variety of trails and facilities in areas that remain closed to hunting.

Recovery of the forest is monitored as moose numbers decline.

Indicators of success are the growth of forest-floor plants and the recovery of young fir and other woody species. Parks Canada's target is a healthy forest and a healthy moose population.

SPECIES AT RISK A NEW MULTI-SPECIES ACTION PLAN

By protecting large areas of natural habitat, national parks play an important role in helping species at risk in Canada. But national parks also do much more to give these troubled species a helping hand.

In accordance with Canada's Species at Risk Act, Gros Morne National Park is developing a Multi-species Action Plan to help recover the species at risk that call the park home. This plan will address the needs of 14 species, including Piping Plover, American Marten, and the Newfoundland Red Crossbill. The plan addresses population monitoring and research needs, habitat protection and restoration, public education, and co-operation with our partners to ensure that imperilled species have a safe and secure home in Gros Morne National Park.

Seeing wildlife is always exciting and Gros Morne offers lots of viewing opportunities for visitors. Whether it's birds or mammals, the park is home to a variety of species.

Arctic Hare weigh up to 6 kg and are the largest members of the hare family. They are grey in summer and turn white in winter. Arctic hare are native to the island of Newfoundland. They live on the arctic-alpine barrens of the park's mountains and are regularly seen on Gros Morne Mountain.

Snowshoe Hare were introduced to the island in the 1800s. They are brown in summer and white in winter. Snowshoe hare live in the forests and are commonly seen in campgrounds and along the lowland trails.

Rock Ptarmigan live all year on the arctic-alpine barrens of the park's mountains. These birds are grey in summer and white in winter. They depend on camouflage for protection and fly only when badly frightened. They are regularly seen on Gros Morne Mountain.

Bald Eagles are often seen around Bonne Bay. Trees perched on the steep slopes surrounding the bay are ideal nesting areas and the bay's shoreline is used for foraging.

Caribou are the native deer of the island of Newfoundland. At less than 240 kg, they are considerably smaller than moose. They are dark brown in summer but light brown to white in colour through fall and spring. In summer, caribou are commonly seen on the Long Range Mountains and only occasionally seen in bogs and forests of the lowlands. During fall and winter, they are often seen in the coastal bogs north of Rocky Harbour.

Moose are the largest member of the deer family. They are dark brown and weigh between 385 and 540 kg. They were first introduced to the island in 1878 and today there are about 4800 animals in the park. Moose are often seen along roadsides and trails, particularly around dawn and dusk. They can cause significant damage, injury and/or death when hit by a vehicle, so drive carefully Covote looks like a medium-sized German shepherd but is grey or reddish grey with a whitish throat and belly. It is mostly nocturnal although it may be seen at any time of day. The coyote is an opportunistic feeder with its main diet consisting of snowshoe hare, caribou, moose, carrion, birds and small mammals.

Black Bears are native to the island. They are found throughout the park but seen infrequently. Bears will eat a variety of things including berries, carrion, garbage, and the occasional caribou calf. Bears tend to be wary of people but they are attracted by food. Keep yourself safe: do not leave food or garbage lying around. Read the brochure You Are In Bear Country and report all bear sightings to park staff.

Red Foxes are native to Newfoundland but are often not the typical red colour. They may be black and silver or a mixture of colours but all have the distinctive white tip on the tail. Foxes are often seen along roadsides and are common throughout the park.

Whales - Minke whales are often seen in Bonne Bay from late spring to fall. Larger whales, such as the Humpback, are uncommon but can be seen near St. Anthony and the Labrador Straits area.

DID YOU KNOW?

With the island's isolation from the North American mainland, there are only 14 native mammals and no native amphibians or reptiles.

KEEP THEM WILD & STAY SAFE

- Don't approach wildlife. Give them space and respect.
- Use binoculars or a telephoto lens for that close up view.
- Keep the animal's line of travel or escape route clear.
- Back away slowly if the animal shows signs of aggression or approaches you.
- Don't feed animals.

BEAR SAFETY

Read the brochure You Are In Black Bear Country, available at the the Visitor Centre, the Discovery Centre, or online at www.pc.gc.ca. Always practise proper food storage.

WILDLIFE ON THE ROAD

Drive carefully as many of your wildlife encounters will occur unexpectedly while driving. Moose, foxes, and bears are often seen along the road. If you decide to stop, don't forget about traffic safety. Be sure to pull off the road and watch for oncoming traffic.

Discover a place where the wealth of the sea has supported human settlement for more than 5000 years. Here archaeologists have found evidence of four Aboriginal cultures; the Groswater and Dorset Palaeoeskimos, the Maritime Archaic Tradition, and the ancestors of the Beothuk. The abundance and preservation of artefacts they left behind provides us with a fascinating look into the social, economic, and spiritual practices of these cultures.

Today the residents of Port au Choix continue to make their living from the sea, just as generations of Aboriginal people did before them. One thousand years ago, the Norse landed on the shores of Newfoundland, and explored an area they called Vinland. Their voyages to North America led to the first meeting between Aboriginal peoples and Europeans. This marked a key chapter in worldwide exploration and settlement. L'Anse aux Meadows National Historic Site is among the world's most significant archaeological sites and designated a UNESCO World Heritage Site. Today, you still can see the outlines of the original Norse buildings and gaze over a landscape little changed since Viking time.

What's in a name?

"Gros" means big, "Morne" is a Creole word for a small, rounded mountain standing alone. In French, morne also means dismal or gloomy. So, although Gros Morne probably means "big isolated hill", when clouds rake across the mountaintop the gloomy description often seems fitting.
